TORNADO TAKES TOLL OF SIX LIVES; MANY HURT

Property Damage Estimated
In Excess of $200,000 In South

HOUSES DESTROYED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Mar. 7.—(INS)—Six dead, more than fifty injured, one small town practically wiped away, and property damage estimated in excess of $200,000 was the toll of a devastating tornado that swept through corners of three southern states last night, a check up revealed today.

Originating in Northwestern Mississippi, the twister cut a wide path through that district. It then veered into Southeastern Arkansas and finally struck Northeastern Louisiana with full force.

Five of those killed and a majority of the injured were Negroes.

Two negroes were fatally injured, 12 other persons hurt, some seriously, and fifteen houses destroyed when the tornado suddenly dipped down on Sun Flower, Bolivar and Humphreys counties in Mississippi. So quickly did the hurricane winds sweep across the district that few residents had time to seek shelter.

Mrs. J. W. Adams, an aged white woman, was killed when the tornado destroyed her farm home as it passed near Kosciusko, Miss., several negro farm tenants were injured in this vicinity.

Gregory, Ark., near the Mississippi line, was practically obliterated and many of its 200 inhabitants injured as the storm swept into that state. Damages in that town alone were estimated at more than $50,000.

After striking the Gregory district, the tornado curved southward and cut into Southeastern Louisiana, causing the death of three negroes at Harris, La., at least twenty-five persons were injured in this section.

Communications were disrupted in many districts by the high winds and highway travel sadly hampered by debris.

The more seriously injured were being cared for in numerous hospitals in the storm area, according to reports here.

It was feared that the death toll would mount when reports were received from isolated farm sections.

THE BRISTOL COURIER'S HOUSE--APARTMENT--BOARDING-HOUSE--ROOM SURVEY

The Courier is making a survey of the housing, apartment, boarding-house and rooming situation in the Borough of Bristol. This survey is instituted because of the fact that a local industry has announced that within the next three months its working personnel will be increased approximately 50 per cent.—400 male employees.

These workers will have to be housed, and unless accommodations are found in Bristol they will go elsewhere to live, and the money which they receive in wages will naturally be spent in the communities in which they reside.

Bristol needs and will welcome these four hundred men and their families as residents. The industry employing them undoubtedly prefers that its workmen live in the community wherein their plant is located.

If you are the owner of or agent for an unoccupied house, houses, apartment, apartments, or if you have rooms which you will rent, or if you will furnish board, fill out the accompanying memorandum and mail it at once to:

"BUM JOKE" TO COST YOUTHS $150 AND COSTS

Confess to Piling Large Piles of Corn Fodder Across Road

PLACED UNDER ARREST

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 7.—What proved to be a "bum joke" will cost six youths living near the Philmont Country Club $150 and costs when they appear for a hearing on Wednesday, March 12th, before Justice of the Peace Cousand at Horsham.

Yesterday State Highway Patrolman Kelly, of the Edison sub-station arrested six youths who confessed to piling large piles of corn fodder across the Philmont pike on the evening of February 28, resulting in an automobile wreck in which Charles J. Hendler, of 163 Parkview avenue, Willow Grove, proprietor of a drug store at Somerton, was seriously injured.

Those arrested are Edward Tarbuton, twenty, Philmont Country Club; James Clarkson, nineteen, Somerton; Frank Rentz, twenty, Huntingdon Valley; Parker Sands, twenty-two; Somerton; Clyde Bigler, twenty, Bustleton pike; and Joseph Connelly, twenty, Huntingdon Valley.

When Hendler was discharged from the doctor's care several days ago he reported the affair to Patrolman Kelly, who completed his investigation yesterday. A colored youth, Norman Hill, employed at the Philmont Country Club gave the officer a "tip" and one at a time the youths admitted to the officer they had taken a part in the "practical joke," as they called it.

Hendler's car overturned when it struck the corn fodder piled in the highway. His car was damaged to the extent of $250 and Hendler sustained two fractured ribs and internal injuries.

FAKE SOLICITOR IS ARRESTED AND NOW DOING TIME

Alleged Wounded Veteran
Who Swindled Men Here
Is Caught

DID UNCANNY THINGS

Demonstrated to His Victims
That He Had No Sense
Of Feeling

A number of Bristol residents and business men will be interested to hear that a man calling himself John Foster, Jr., who several months ago through fraud obtained considerable money here, has been arrested and is now doing time in New Albany, Indiana.

"Foster," whose real name is said to be Pat Lee, worked under a number of aliases. He was arrested on suspicion at New Albany, Ind., pleaded guilty and has been sentenced to from one to seven years with $1,000 fine and is now in the penitentiary.

In Bristol and elsewhere in Bucks County Lee used the name of a prominent Doylestown lawyer as reference.

Pat Lee might be classified as an old offender, that is, he has been listed for just a year and a half. He was reported on October 9, 1928, under the name of C. D. Brown. His right name is probably Pat Lee, as that is the name he gave the prosecuting authorities at New Albany, Ind. He had been arrested in Little Rock, Ark., on December 16, 1928, on a charge of stealing a fountain pen in an office where he had called and he gave his name to the police then as Pat Lee. At that time he was released on minor bail, which he jumped.

Pat Lee's fraudulent operations were first brought before the public by the publishers of "Literary Digest" when he began operations in Washington, D. C., in August, 1928, using the name of C. D. Brown. He used a fictitious printed receipt or contract, bearing the name of the "Literary Digest," which he offered for a year with a set of law books, or a dictionary, or works of fiction, for $3.50. In about a month he dropped "Literary Digest" and changed his receipt to read "Time." Thereafter, when his supply of receipts ran out, he always changed the name on his new receipts to a different magazine, using in succession "American," "System," "Forum," "Popular Mechanics," "Popular Science Monthly," "Golden Book," and lastly "Review of Reviews." His offer was generally two years with a dictionary, or a set of books, for $4.00 cash, or $5.00 in part payments, but he always managed to collect $4.00, and more recently $5.00 flat.

Pat Lee is an unusually picturesque character. He dubbed himself "the man without feeling." Posing as a member of the American Legion who had been disabled "in going over the top fourteen times," he put on a few tricks for the edification of his victims that were positively uncanny.

He claimed to have been so badly wounded that it was necessary to remove a portion of his "innards" and insert 24 feet of goat intestines, which he said resulted in entire loss of feeling in his body. To prove this he would hold a lighted match under his fingers, evincing no pain. Next, he would stick a pin in his arm without wincing, to show that it was numb. Lastly, he would twist his right leg around so that the toes would be where the heel should be, explaining that his hip had been shot away and that he wore an aluminum jacket to (Continued on Page 3)

"The automobile of a Hulmeville woman was slightly damaged on the Lincoln highway yesterday in a hit-and-run case. Becoming indignant when her car barely missed a pole at the side of the road when an auto from one of the New England states successfully squeezed between her machine and another the fair driver decided to "do her darndest."

Forty, fifty, fifty-five and finally sixty did the speedometer show. Down the highway and boulevard they sped, the one with the damaged car finally meeting her "objective" several miles from the point of the affair.

Some rather warm words ensued. "How much do you want?" queried the perpetrator. "You'll settle with the police," was the answer, "so just follow me."

Off they started, at least the following was alright for about one block, but the next time a backward glance was taken by the Hulmeville resident, the car, driver and passengers had faded from sight.

ADVERTISING—ITS WORTH

Every little three-line item you read has turned the wheels of some great factory. Every time you see a cut price the number of gray hairs in the world has been increased.

Many an advertisement is planned a year before it ever finds its way into print. One advertisement in Philadelphia a few years ago opened up the copper mines in Colorado six months before it ever appeared. A thousand miners began digging copper on a contract of brass beds that were going to be made that were going to be advertised.

You see perhaps some piece of muslin wear advertised whose trimming is pretty, or some gown whose design is elegant. The chances are that a hundred styles were discarded or changed to get this one for you. And all the while the buyer of your favorite store was picking and choosing he had you in mind. He was building the advertisement that would catch your eye and please your fancy and your pocketbook.

If you had been there you would have heard him telling the manufacturer: "My customers are particular. They must have the best that there is at the lowest price that can be made. You've got to give me something better than you give to anyone else."

Every one of these buyers is fighting for you, and it is up to you to show your loyalty to them.

The store that advertises to trick its customers is almost a relic in this present day.

Many a time you find a bargain that turns out better than the advertisement claimed it to be, and you think—somebody, somewhere, has made a mistake. But there was no mistake. It was put there purposely to win your confidence.

Every ounce of human ingenuity is brought to bear upon the advertising of the present day. To write the real story of a single item would be to write a chapter in the history of commerce.

These merchants who have figured on costs till their eyes gave out; these buyers who have studied every angle of their work, are trying to tell you through their advertising just what they have done for you. And the least you can do is to read what they have to say.

The report of all their efforts is in this paper today. The advertising news to you should be interesting news after this.

Pay Day is father's day.

It's never too late to spend.

That step to success isn't a side-step.

It's fine to begin at the bottom if you don't stop there.

Now they are married in haste and divorced with pleasure.

Climbers on the social ladder have thrown off the handicap of clothes.

However, the laws should not have teeth enough to bite off more than they can chew.

Fake Solicitor Arrested And Now Doing Time

hold his leg to his body. To this weird tale he added the statement that 168 pieces of shrapnel were removed from his body, that he could take only liquid food (being unable to bite) and that he had no taste.

Credit for the apprehension of Pat Lee goes to Thomas Nealy, manager of the Louisville branch of P. F. Collier & Son, who, being advised by a friend in New Albany, Ind. (which is adjacent to Louisville, Ky.) of Pat Lee's unusual solicitation, consulted his file of fraud agents and identified Lee from a special printed bulletin sent to Crowell and Collier representatives when Lee was collecting for subscriptions to "American Magazine."

With the assistance of Mr. Nealy, and the prompt and efficient cooperation of the police of New Albany, followed by the excellent work of County Prosecuting Attorney Chester V. Lorch, Pat Lee's case was disposed of in record-breaking time, as noted above. After an intensive examination by Attorney Lorch, who had received a full report of this agent's fraudulent work, Lee confessed, boasting that he had taken thousands of magazine orders which he had never reported, including 35 orders in New Albany at $5.00 each. Investigation disclosed that Lee was registered at a hotel in Louisville with two men who used the name of Wilson. These men were detained by the police for a day, but were released, as no charge could be found against them.

"FLAXOLYN CHALLENGES STOMACH SUFFERERS"

SAYS DR. RODNEY MADISON

Eat With Keen Appetite—Have That Ruddy Glow of Health—Overcome Constipation—Get a New Kind of Food—Refreshingly Invigorating Sleep—Get a Better Grip on Life, With the Help of Flaxolyn.

"About four years ago, while practicing in California, I used Herbal Flaxolyn," writes Dr. Rodney Madison. "The results were so satisfactory that I immediately started to recommend it. 'No person who suffers from stomach distress, gas bloating, heartburn, nervous indigestion or any similar disturbance, should fail to give Flaxolyn a fair trial. Flaxolyn activates the flow of the vital digestive juices. When the liver has become lazy it stimulates the previous bile secretions. 'Flaxolyn clears the intestines of toxic poisons which would otherwise pollute the blood stream. 'I am very happy to lend my name to the list of professional men who have so highly endorsed this health product.'"

Equal to Those in Tablet of Yeast

Every Pleasant Spoonful of Flaxolyn Contains Vitamines

The vitamines in Herbal Flaxolyn are obtained through a process of concentration. They are derived from vegetable juices, yeast, and cereal coatings. In addition to its vitamine content, Flaxolyn is rich in extracts of sundried herbs. It also contains valuable therapeutic ingredients approved by leading authorities in the field of medicine and pharmacy.

25 YEARS' STUDY BEHIND HERBAL FLAXOLYN

The basic formula of Dr. Luntz's Vitaminized Herbal Flaxolyn, is the result of 25 years devoted to the study of botanical therapy. Even if the ingredients of Flaxolyn were fully known to chemists it would still be utterly impossible to combine them with the same degree of balance and potency found in Flaxolyn.

DR. LUNTZ'S DOUBLE GUARANTEE
To all who seek a health improvement, Dr. Harris H. Luntz, M. D., D. O., makes this unique guarantee:
1. Flaxolyn is safe and harmless. The pure herbal extracts are fortified by other highly approved ingredients.
2. If you are not satisfied with the results by the sixth spoonful, return the partly-used bottle and get your money back.

"SUCCESS NEVER COMES EASILY"—BILLIE BURKE

Philosophy of Comedienne Is There's No Easy Path To Real Achievement

TELLS OF THRILL

(Editor's Note—This is the second article based on an interview with Billie Burke, famous actress.)

By James L. Kilgallen
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1930 by International News Service)

PALM BEACH, Fla., Mar. 7.—"Success never comes easily. There is no easy road to any real achievement."

This is the philosophy of Billie Burke, famous comedienne, and the wife of Florenz Ziegfeld, the producer, as expressed in an exclusive interview in her Palm Beach home today.

Asked what experience gave her the greatest thrill during her noted career, she thought for a moment and replied:

"When recognition came."

That was in 1909. She had gone to New York from London to be John Drew's leading lady in a Broadway production called "My Wife." Miss Burke said she had been doing fairly good bits, having supported Edna May, a famous actress abroad. She related that she was "amazed" when she found that she had "gone over big" in New York and the dramatic critics wrote her down a star of the first magnitude.

Miss Burke revealed that her favorite actress always has been, and still is, Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske.

"She was my greatest inspiration," said Miss Burke. Incidentally, like Mrs. Fiske, Billie Burke had red hair.

Miss Burke said she always admired Mrs. Fiske's vitality and technique. She thinks good acting requires vitality, the giving of all that is in one to the part one essays to play.

"I think," said Miss Burke, reminiscingly, "that it was much easier in the old days to become a star than it is today. We toured the country—one night stands, you might call them—and built up a lasting following. The United States was a wonderful country to comb."

"The old starring system has gone by the boards with the change that has come in the theatre. I think my success was due to the fact that I had good parts to play."

"I always got a thrill out of the theatre. I hope I never reach the point where I will not receive a pleasurable anticipation when the curtain goes up in a theatre. To me there always has been a romance about being in the theatre, as a spectator as well as a performer. Maybe that is because the theatre is always associated with the romantic period of almost every one's life."

"Interest in the theatre is higher today than ever before. I do think, however, that there is a dearth of plays. Why is it with so many ready to produce them?"

Miss Burke was born in Washington, D. C., August 7, 1886, and educated in France and London. She made her debut as a singer at Pavilion Music Hall, London, in 1902, as the support of Edna May in "The School Girl." She attributes her success to her "wonderful mother" who died seven years ago.

Subsequently Miss Burke appeared in "The Dutchess of Dantzic," "The Blue Moon" and "The Belle of Mayfair." Then she became John Drew's leading woman. She came to America and starred in many plays, including "My Wife," "Love Watches," "Mrs. Dot," "Suzanne," "The Runaway," "Marriage of Convenience," "Ceaser's Wife," "Intimate Strangers," "Rose Briar," "Annie Dear," and "The Marquis."

In 1914 she married Ziegfeld. Miss Burke has been very happy in Palm Beach this winter season, having aided charity by producing a play at a local theatre. It was her first time in the role of "producer" and she proved to be a distinct success.
